Portrait of Dr. Francis Herrick by Richard Lofton.

Here's One Historian Who Still Believes People Make History

By NANCY LOFTON

A grant of $75,000 from the Carnegie Foundation has recently come to the history department of Mills College to underwrite for five years the expenses of an advanced course in American Humanities. To what extent this grant and this course are due to the abilities as teacher and administrator of Dr. Francis Herrick of Carmel and Mills College is difficult to say. It has been a cooperative labor, but Dr. Herrick is chairman of Mills' history department.

Dr. Herrick spends summers and frequent week ends in Carmel in his house on the corner of Camino Real and Ninth Street in a part of Carmel which has been haunted by professors since the early years of the century.

"The important thing about any educational experiment is not the procedure which followed, but the attitude of mind which gives it birth," Dr. Herrick told me when I asked him the significance and nature of this newly endowed course at Mills. "Open-mindedness and a willingness to experiment are the important things."

"Alfred Frankenstein, Lawrence Sears, Franklin Walker and Reynold Wik will meet with the class throughout the year. Frankenstein's field is music and painting; Sears' is philosophy and the history of American ideas; Walker's field is American literature, especially western; and Reynold Wik's is American history, particularly agricultural history. These are people with different backgrounds and different points of view.

A small group of students will work with the four professors to find out what is the state of American literature, music and political thinking. With four professors more information will be mobilized and more points of view examined. This undertaking is part of a program to build up a series of courses or possibly even a department dealing with the peculiarly American cultural or historical background.

He is concerned with both men and events, which together make history. Personalities which have influenced the course of history in ways text books never explain have a fascination for him which has led him to spend many hours over the unpublished letters of such a man as Gladstone looking for something he deduced must be there. Dr. Herrick is to speak before the Mills faculty this fall on Gladstone's and Disraeli's use of personal, private agents to provide them with information and assistance. He told me several fascinating stories involving Gladstone and Parnell, Disraeli and Napoleon III which he unearthed during his sabbatical year. Since they are his own, I shall not repeat them, but they indicate the validity of his belief that the economic interpretation of history is insufficient. Human motivation is the important thing to consider in the study of history. Decisions are made by men, with or without scruples. Any situation must be studied with a regard for the character of the men involved. When a student begins to understand how complicated a situation is, he has begun to understand something about its nature. People who don't know very much about history can generally make quite definite and authoritative statements about it.

I was amused as Dr. Herrick grew momentarily irritated at his train of thought. "History tells us," he said with a snort. "You always hear people saying, 'History tells us so and so.' History doesn't

Carmel Pumper To Answer General Alarm Sunday

Next week is Fire Prevention Week and the seven fire districts in the area are planning a series of events to celebrate the occasion. On Sunday afternoon, at the order of the seven fire chiefs on the peninsula, a general alarm will be sounded at 1:00 o'clock and ten pumpers will promptly converge on a blaze which will rage in El Estero Park in Monterey. One of Carmel's three fire engines will roar over the hill to assist.

John Hudelson, assistant Carmel fire chief, will be in charge of the program during the week in Carmel. Equipment will be demonstrated at the grade schools and the pupils will be excused from class to watch. Booklets will be given to the teachers of Grades 1-4 inclusive to be distributed to the students, who will use them to check fire hazards in the home. These booklets will be filled out by the children and several of the best booklets turned in in each grade will win for the children who filled them out a bus ride to all fire houses on the peninsula with refreshments to be served at one of them.

Fire marshall Robert G. Leidig will put up posters for display throughout the town.

Sailing Smeetons Dock Tzu Hang For Visit Here

Sailing in a stout ketch ,the Tzu Hang, to Australia, from one of the British Columbia islands in the Strait of Georgia, Mrs. Miles Smeeton and her daughter Chloe are enjoying a brief shore interlude in Carmel, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowman. The third member of the Tzu Hang's crew, Brig. Gen. Miles Smeeton, is standing by at Sausalito, awaiting arrival of some spare gear from Seattle. On the next lap of the open Pacific, they will make for Fanning Island, without calling at Hawaii.

The Smeeton family of three are experienced navigators. They have already sailed the Tzu Hang—built in Hong Kong—from Falmouth on the English Channel to Saltspring Island, where they live, thirty miles north of Victoria, British Columbia. Chloe missed a year's schooling on that Atlantic voyage via Panama, but has made up for it since, including becoming an expert horsewoman.

They are a versatile family. When Brig. Miles Smeeton served with the Indian Army, while the

Council Gives Residence Dist. To T.V. People

The City Council voted two to three last night to amend the ordinance requiring that the Alarm Corporation place their TV amplifier boxes below ground. Councilmen Patnude, Smith and Chitwood were in favor of amending the ordinance so that the corporation could place these boxes throughout the business and residential district, wherever they so desired, above ground on city property. Opposing the amendment were Mayor Horace Lyon and Francis Whitaker. First reading of the amendment was given and second reading will take place in November, with 30 days to elapse before the amendment goes into effect, sometime in early December. Only control on the Alarm corporation will then be that the placing of each simulated-two-seat-bench amplifier box must be approved by the council before it can be installed. A sample box has been in place for some time at Casanova and Eleventh Streets. This is the end of a long campaign by the Alarm Corporation to place their boxes above ground on the claim that underground the boxes cause their amplifiers to heat.

The Council also put in motion the technical annexation of a one-third acre strip of ground on the south side of the county road in the La Loma Terrace area. The strip is adjacent to Carmel and will be contiguous to the proposed freeway to be constructed by the State and thus satisfies the State Highway Commission qualifications for Carmel in this respect.

The interim ordinance recommended by the Planning Commission was not acceptable to the Council and the matter is to be further discussed by council members at the adjourned meeting to be held on October 17. This interim ordinance was asked by the Planning Commission to facilitate the work of Larry Livingstone, Jr., planning consultant, and the Planning Commission in framing a master plan for Carmel.

Firemen who attended first aid courses are to be granted extra points on their rating was the decision of the council last night. The Council also signed the new agreement with the S.P.C.A. for pound work in the community. The letter of Mrs. Eustace J. Maguire for underground wiring was discussed and City Clerk Mawdsley was instructed to communicate with her and explain the city has no jurisdiction in this matter. It must be brought about by a hundred per cent vote of property owners and would entail

PADRE FOOTBALL TEAM AT HOLLISTER FRIDAY NIGHT

Carmel High's jv and varsity football teams go after win number two in league play tommorow night when they go to Hollister for a double-header. While both teams are undefeated in league play, the Carmel junior-varsity enjoys a slight edge over the Hayseeds as they sport a 2-0 record to the hosts 0-2. The Carmel jv team whipped the Coast varsity, 18 to 0, and edged the tough Gonzales junior-varsity, 6 to 0, in last Saturday's league game. Hollister's junior-varsity was trampled by the Salinas lightweights, 45 to 0, and dropped their first league tilt to King City, 19 to 0. The Haybaler varsity dropped a 25-7 decision to the strong Dos Palos squad but bounced back last week to whip a favored King City team, 20 to 0.

Tomorrow night's league fracas will match the largest (Hollister) school with the smallest (Carmel) in a game which is crucial to both teams. On the basis of their victory over King City, Hollister is an established contender for the league crown and rates an even-up chance against the classy Gilroy Mustangs who have been picked to win the B league. However, Carmel backers like the chances of the little Padres against all the big schools and a win over Hollister will move the local preps right up with the favorites.

Hollister's varsity is a rugged well-balanced aggregation which is sparked by speed in the backfield. The Haybaler line averages out at 175 pounds and the backfield weighs in at 165. The quick-hitting Hollister attack is designed to spring their speedy backs and will present a severe challenge for the stubborn Carmel defensive crew. In their two games so far this season, Carmel's opponents haven't penetrated inside the 15-yard line on scrimmage plays and the Padre defense would like to see this record remain intact tomorrow night.

PADRE VARSITY WINS LEAGUE OPENER

Scoring early and easy in the opening minutes of the first quarter and late and lucky in the waning minutes of the final quarter, the Carmel High School varsity football team whipped Gonzales High, 14 to 0, to successfully open their 1955 league play. The Padres hit the scoreboard on their first offensive thrust as the Redshirts moved 70 yards in eight plays after the opening kickoff. Big ground-eaters in the scoring drive were a 20-yard sweep by quarterback Mike Mosolf, a 25-yard gainer on a pitchout to West Whittaker, a miraculous catch of a forward pass by George Wightman which was good for 16 yards, and a scoring pass to Dick Jennings thrown by Mosolf. Kyrk Reid converted for 7-0.

The second and third periods were defensive battles which saw the Padres threaten several times but with no scoring success. Gonzales put together several long drives but the strong Carmel defense rose up to throttle the Spartan offense when in the danger zone. The slashing tackling and spirited defensive play of halfback West Whittaker, linebacker Dick Ogden, ends Bob Wise and Dick Jennings, and a pair of hard-charging guards, Bob Michela and Syd Trevvett did the big damage to the Spartan offense.

An 84-yard ramble by quarterback Mike Mosolf produced the second Carmel touchdown late in the fourth quarter. Backed up to their 16-yard line by a clipping penalty, the Padres appeared pretty well bottled-up when the skinny quarterback found daylight at left-tackle, picked up some good downfield blocks by Whittaker, Thompson, Sutton, McCormack, and Ogden, and sprinted for the game-clinching td. Kyrk Reid again kicked successfully on the conversion and the Padres were home, 14 to 0.

CARMEL JUNIOR-VARSITY CLIPS GONZALES, 6 TO 0

Led by stubby quarterback, Jim Konrad, and a sharp-blocking fullback, Andy Gray, the Carmel High junior-varsity pushed over a score late in the final period to edge a scrappy Gonzales jv squad, 6 to 0, in a league-opener for both teams. While running their win streak to six in a row (4 during the '54 season and 2 this year) the Carmel Babes showed big improvement in the blocking and tackling department and their play execution was near-varsity caliber. The visiting Gonzales aggregation opened the Carmel defense for several long offensive thrusts but couldn't put together a sustained drive which could threaten the Padrecito goal. The sharp tackling of Jack Faia, Carmel's diminutive linebacker, was a big factor in the successful defense employed by the local junior-varsity.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Shades of Tom Sawyer!

Hack Willis had just stopped the tractor so's he could cool off at the pump, when a young insurance salesman came up the drive.

Hack was tired of plowing, and needed insurance on his new barn. But he also needed to get that winter rye in fast. The salesman, an eager kid, noticed hesitation. "I come from a farm," he said. "Why don't you look at these booklets—get all the dope—and I'll take that plow a couple of rounds for you."

Young fellow laid off a pretty straight furrow, too. It was almost dark before Hack—sitting in the shade—was able to decide just what kind of policy to get.

From where I sit, to be a good salesman—or a good citizen—it always helps to "put yourself in the other man's place." He may have a different sort of job with different problems ... he may prefer to close a deal over, say, a friendly glass of beer while you might prefer something else. But both of you can co-operate if you make it a "policy" to try.

Schwarzkopf Concert

By EBEN WHITTLESEY

The Carmel Music Society opened its season on Tuesday evening by presenting a brilliant and attractive young soprano, Elizabeth Schwarzkopf in a program of a highly specialized nature. No one could hear this artist's voice and fail to thrill to its splendid clarity and mellowness of tone. The audience was most enthusiastic in its response.

The concert-going community is divided into two fairly well defined groups; those who are stirred to ecstasy by German lieder, and those whose response to this type of music ranges from luke-warm to frigid. This reviewer belongs to the latter class. There were only three songs on the program by other than German composers, and there was not a word of English heard during the evening. This artist has the happy gift of uttering German words with a free flow of an open tone. While possessing considerable dramatic talent, Miss Schwarzkopf does not overdo the ornate emotion of her subject matter.

The first group of songs by Bach, Pergolesi, Handel and Paissielo established the artist as a fine technician, having excellent control of her voice, a very lovely tone quality, clear diction and a highly flexible technique. The songs ranged from the devotional to the pastoral and were presented with an easy, uncomplicated style.

The second group brought us to Schubert, opening with the charming Das Lied im Grunen. The fay and familiar Die Forelle was sung with a fine light touch. Paul Ulanowsky's accompaniment was most enjoyable. An Aria from Di Donne Abandonata was sung with a vibrant, stirring tone quality. After the intermission we settled down to the serious business of the evening, an unrelieved dose of Wolf and Strauss. Ganymed was full of power and the bursting vitality of spring. Gleich und Gleich provided the contrast of whimsical humor in a pastoral setting. The dramatic Epiphanias was well acted and full of life, its rather heavy humor was effectively presented. Several more Wolf songs provided considerable variety of mood, mainly in the pastoral vein. Meanwhile I yearned for something that would release the lyric beauty of that remarkably pure and flexible tone.

Finally came the Richard Strauss group, opening with the effective contrast of Ruhe, Meine Seele with the gentle Freundliche Vision. Then there was the haunting and familiar Zuegnung which closed the program on a note of power. Three encores, including a charming Swiss folksong, rewarded enthusiastic applause. I hope to hear this fine voice sometime in a program of broader appeal.

The third and fourth year Spanish students have continued a program started last year. They are teaching the fifth grade students of Sunset School how to speak Spanish. Each member of the high school is assigned to six or seven fifth graders. The lessons are for twenty minutes every Tuesday and Thursday. So far this program has been successful since it is useful for the elementary students to have a basic knowledge of a foreign language.

Dodge Introduces New 4-Door Hardtop

One of the newest, most exciting automobiles to appear on the American motoring scene in recent years is the glamorous 1956 Dodge Four-Door Lancer hardtop. All of the youth and vigor of true hardtop styling has been skillfully combined with the comfort and convenience of the four-door sedan. While the car shown above is in the Custom Royal series, the same body style is being offered in the lower priced Royal and Coronet series.

The Time Has Come .

By Kippy Stuart

Lets have some fun in this column. The thing has been dry as dry far too long. Such funny things do happen to me that will die aborning if I don't relay them. I have filed every copy of the Pine Cone for lo, these eight years, and to me those Pine Cone copies are as necessary and valuable as my cancelled checks. Not so long ago, the phone rang.

Voice, "Now Mrs. Stuart, you said right in the Pine Cone . . . and I did exactly as you said and nothing happened."

Me, "What issue of the Pine Cone do you refer to?"

Voice, "Now, how should I know, but you said right in the Pine Cone . . ."

A few well directed questions brought this out. I had been explaining that sand is a necessary ingredient in heavy soil and that sand was a "must" for starting new cuttings. It came to light that the lady had followed my directions to the letter, with one exception.

Me, "You should have no trouble with sand if you followed my directions."

Voice, "Well, I did and it took me two hours to drag the stuff up from the beach."

Me, (gasping), "You don't mean that you used ocean sand? I specifically directed river-wash sand, obtained at Carmel River or from builder's supplies. Beach sand is impregnated with salt and salt is a killer for all growing things."

Voice, (muttering), "Well, I don't see any difference, sand is sand and you did say right in the Pine Cone . . ."

The second absurdity happened like this:

Voice, "Mrs. Stuart, there is certainly something wrong with your directions. You explained in the Pine Cone about planting things between flag stones. You recommended ground thyme."

Me, "I still recommend ground thyme. It makes a lovely, soft grey strip between flag stones. If planted properly, the small cuttings should sprout in a few weeks."

Voice, "Well, I planted my thyme three months ago, and nothing has happened."

Me, (puzzled), "Where did you get the cuttings for the thyme?"

Voice, (superior), "Why in the kitchen of course."

Me, "Oh, did you start a few cuttings in a pot in your kitchen window?"

Voice, "Of course not, I got the stuff from my spice shelf. On the label it said 'Ground Thyme', and you said right in the Pine Cone . . ."

Sailing Smeetons Dock Tzu Hang For Carmel Visit

British were in command, he and Mrs. Smeeton went on Himalayan mountain climbing expeditions, including one with Tenzing as guide.

At the end of World War II. in Burma, they bought themselves a British Columbia ranch on Saltspring Island, without seeing it. They took over the awaiting occupants: cattle, hogs, poultry and bees, along with several hundred acres of Douglas fir and a favorite shoreline for cohoe salmon —so virtually live off the land, between ocean voyages on the Tzu Hang.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Bowman while in Carmel, the Smeetons were nearest visible neighbors, three miles across the channel to Saltspring, when the Bowmans lived on Vancouver Island.

Monterey College First Site Choice For Auditorium

Monterey College got first nod as site for a proposed Monterey Peninsula Auditorium from the site committee in its report at a breakfast meeting Tuesday morning.

Second choice is the "proposed state capitol site" and third, the Carmel-Pacific Grove highway suggested site. All other locations—there were 14 on the list—should be removed from consideration, recommended the committee, which is headed by Wallace Holm.

Reason for giving Monterey College first choice, according to the committee's report, was that Monterey College was willing to lease the property for 99 years, "provided the school district could use the facilities for school purposes when it is not otherwise used," also, "this site is centrally located to all six communities; access to and from the site is excellent, especially with the widening of Fremont street and a stop and go sign at the college entrance. Adequate parking space for 6000 people (1500 cars) is available. The site is relatively level which is an advantage for building and future expansion."

In considering sites, the committee assumed that the auditorium would be composed of two buildings, a concert hall, seating 1500 people, and a colosseum, seating 5000 and figured parking on a ratio of one car for every four seats. With building area about 3.5 acres, and parking about 11 acres, the total site area should be a minimum of 15 acres, but 20 would be better to allow for future expansion.

The Monterey College site has only 15 acres. The state capitol and Carmel-Pacific Grove cut off sites both have 20, the committee noted. The cut off is not so desirable as the other, because the Carmel-Pacific Grave road would have to carry all the traffic. The old capitol site, when Soledad Drive to Pacific Grove and Sylvan Way to the Salinas Highway are developed, would be centrally located to all communities with easy access and egress.

"Other items of importance such as transportation, topography, circulation, expansion and environment were considered as advantages in this area. The item of cost will not be known until determined by appraisers at a latter date, if and when the site is made available. It was pointed out to the committee that the general opinion of auditorium managers throughout the country was that the prominence of the site location was paramount and the cost secondary."

Another committee, headed by Carmel Martin, is studying how best to finance the project.

Streb New Manager At La Playa Hotel

George F. Streb took over the managing of the La Playa Hotel this weekend replacing William Briggs who resigned to take a position at the Ojai Valley Inn. For the past six years Streb has been manager of the Hotel del Coronado in Coronado which, like La Playa, is run by Ashton Stanley.

Originally from Mobile, Alabama, Streb discovered California during the war when he was stationed with the Air Force at Norton Field near San Bernardino. He served overseas as an air inspector with the Twentieth Air Force in China, Burma and India, when his duties consisted of checking planes and air bases. On his return to the United States and his release from the Army, he decided to remain in California and eventually became associated with Mr. Stanley in the hotel business.

New Circle Play Good

By HARRIET KEEN ROBERTS

Treasure Hunt, the new English comedy—the scene is laid in Southern Ireland—which opened last Friday night at the Golden Bough Player's Circle, was acclaimed a veritable treasure by a delighted first-night audience. The impoverished Irish family with which it deals only found its lost treasure, the rubies given to old Aunt Anna Rose on her wedding-day, at the last moment of the last act, but the audience began to discover the treasures of an excellently cast and directed company with the entrance of the first two "characters". They were Florence Venn, who plays Bridgid O'Keefe, a housemaid who rules the house and is that thoroughly Irish combination, an hilarious Mrs. Gummidge, and Kit Jones as William Burke, a most engaging houseboy. (The program notes tell us nothing of Mr. Jones' past on the stage, but I am willing to foretell a fair future if he cares to go on, so at ease was he, so telling and so sympathetic did he make a small part.)

Then came two selfish dependents of the house, the aunt and uncle of the young head of the family, Sir Philip Ryall. The greedy, selfish uncle, Hercules Ryall and the scatter-brained, self-centered aunt, Consuelo Howard, were convincingly played by Edgar Bryant and Gertrude Chappell.

Then entered a mournful little figure, Gene Eplett as a solicitor, just risen from a bed of influenza, to read the will after the funeral of Sir Philip's father. A nineteenth century Dutch painter, Jacob Maris, said, I think mistakenly, that no picture could be bad that had sheep in it. I suppose I, too, might be mistaken if I said that no play could be unamusing that had Gene Eplett in it, but I am tempted to say just that. This young amateur actor can make the oddest, the most fanciful, the most commonplace of characters at once convincing, ludicrous and yet so sympathetic that an audience is put at once into the right mood of delighted amusement and belief. If the present day theories of doctors and psychiatrists about the effects of emotion and suggestion on the human frame are right, Mr. Eplett, ably assisted later on in the play by Mr. Bryant, should cause a severe epidemic of 'flu and the common cold on the Monterey Peninsula. As I looked at Mr. Eplett's suffering face and listened to his all-but-lost voice I could feel the beginnings of a violent cold and almost reached into my handbag for an antihistamine. It was as well for the audience, perhaps, though we regretted it, that we saw no more of Mr. Eplett's cold after the first scene, though we were never allowed to forget the chill of an Irish house in winter.

Other listeners to the reading of the will were Sir Philip Ryall, the heir, and his devoted cousin, Veronica Howard, both well and sympathetically played by Carl Cary and Karen Williams Bryant. And Aunt Anna Rose, played by Mrs. Babs Richardson.

When I realized, from the advanced publicity of Treasure Hunt, that we were to see another version of that apparently sure-fire recipe for success, a play about a slightly mad old lady, a kind creature whose madness is nearer sanity than the worldliness of the rest of the cast, I wondered if I had not had enough of "the mixture as before." But if I had already seen a hundred mad women of Chaillot, Aunt Anna Rose would have won my heart. Speaking not in terms of the amateur stage, but by comparison with Miss Hull and the late lamented Margaret Rutherford, Mrs. Babs Richardson did an exquisite piece of work. I have often seen Dame Sybil Thorndyke, who created the part in London, and I cannot believe that she brought to it the softness and charm that Mrs. Richardson gave us. She seemed to be consistently underplaying the part, yet she dominated the stage and enchanted the audience even when she said nothing and merely sat in the sedan chair which represented to her the Orient Express, or a BOAC plane. This sort of travel was the perfect escape for her from family life, with which she could still interfere by telephone or by coming out of her imaginary plane "bandbox-fresh after two thousand miles." Even when I laughed most at Aunt Anna Rose I was conscious of tears just behind my eyes.

To this poverty-stricken Irish family, living at Ballyroden, which was "on the far side of the lake and the wrong side of the mountain," come three English paying guests, in search of more food and firing than the "austerity" of England allowed them. Consuelo and Hercules, intent only on their own comforts, try to supply only discomforts to the undesired P.G.'s. These guests are Mrs. Cleghorne-Thomas, sharp-tongued, selfish, who will "die with every curl in order," her brother, Eustace Mills, subtle enough to fall for Aunt Anna Rose, and her daughter, Yvonne, whose interests are "briefly—men". Mrs. Florence Dormody (Mrs. Cleghorne-Thomas) and Philip Stearns (Eustace Mills) played juvenile leads together on the professional stage in San Francisco some years ago and now meet again in Carmel's Theater-in-the-Round. Mrs. Dormody made Mrs. Cleghorn as handsome, well-dressed and disliked as she was meant to be; Mr. Stearns was relaxed and charming as her amused, sardonic yet sympathetic brother.

In Mrs. Jeanne Danis (Yvonne Cleghorne-Thomas) our local stage has found a rare treasure indeed, an attractive, pretty young actress who is a natural comedienne. Her efforts to win Sir Philip's affections by a pretended interest in farm machinery and by studying the gestation tables of farm animals were exquisitely amusing. And her disgruntled fury after a day of helping Philip with his farming, in the mud and rain of an Irish winter, was a joy to see. Every hair of her dishevelled head seemed to hiss her discomfiture, as if they had been Medusa's snakes.

Treasure Hunt has many intriguing lines, I particularly liked "Banks have such bad taste—at such unpleasant moments!"

Mr. Charles Thomas has directed Treasure Hunt as intelligently, imaginatively and successfully as he did Yes, My Darling Daughter, and he is to be heartily congratulated.

Treasure Hunt will play at week-ends, (Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings) and for a very long time, I fancy.

LINES OF LONELINESS

Perhaps the clock would sing another tune
If it were lulled to sleep by the monotony
Of its own song. A wonderland of dune,
With shells and pebbles laid, and a wide sea

Would suddenly be ours if clocks but slept
Grey time away. Why must a clock tick through
The Winter months when all that's truly kept
Are crosses on a calendar for blue

Handsful of sky, warmed by a warmer sun
Than ever Winter knew, and books forever
Closed, and classrooms, and professors done
With epilogues of learning that endeavor

To capture minds that wander? Summer is
As always what she's promised to expect.
A bear may hibernate for what is his Particular aversion, disrespect

For seasons, and their weather. I affirm
My liking for the summer is a free
World without a ticking clock, and a school term
Devoid of seeing you, you seeing me.

—Claire Aven Thompson

NUGGETS

They are not all below the ground
Or sheathed by waterways and rubble,
And often those above are found
With more depletive search and trouble.

One gathering bits of burnished gold
In poppy fields, where blue hours tarry,
May have to dig them from the hold
Of heart or head, with pick and parry.

The tongues of books and avatars
Can scatter them in open measure;
Again, a man must shovel stars
To find a few for inner treasure.

—Lori Petri

NIGHT SEA

Full moon in wind circled mists of the sky,
Wave hieroglyphics are chalked on the sand,
Sea song compels us with mystery of sound,
From sand path we listen, but somehow are banned;
Motions of gray shadowed night wings of gull,
Worn rocks where sea wraiths flailing, moon-white
What words can we shape to the sighing of song,
To the ancient, lost sounds of the sea in the night?

—Ruth Clair

PINAFORE AT THE BARN

H.M.S. Pinafore, Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, opened in the Barn Theater on Saturday night before a full house of appreciative persons. The cast of Lucy Valpey's Carmel Valley Light Opera had fun with this one. The tricky duets were handled well by Holt Wood (Captain Corcoran) and Maria Grigoriu as Josephine, his daughter. This was Woods first role on the peninsula for a long time and he handled it as well as former performances led the audience to expect.

Barbara Nonnenman fitted the part of Buttercup perfectly and Harold B. Handerson, as Sir Joseph Porter, had the crowd with him all the way. Andy Toscano, the incomparable Nisch of the Merry Widow, turned in a fine performance as Dick Dead Eye, both as to looks and action. Dick Gayman as Ralph Rackstraw found plenty of range for his tenor voice.

A special hand should go to Kermit Gayman, eight year old cabin boy, brother of Dick Gayman, who not only was cute but knew his lines and cues as well as the older members of the cast. The mixed chorus sounded exceptionally well and had the freshness and enthusiasm needed to give Gilbert and Sullivan an extra appeal.

The show is good and the Barn is comfortable with built in crickets who chirp away to lend an air of genuine rusticity. Performances will continue each Friday and Saturday evening through October.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

The annual Book Week, which is celebrated by the public libraries of this country, and sponsored by the Children's Book Council of New York, will come this year the week of November 13 through 19. This library plans to have on display over 200 new books for children. We hope to have all the school children stop in the library during the week to look at the beautiful new books, and then we hope to have them all back again after Book Week is over, to borrow the books that looked good to them. The slogan this year is Let's Read More, and it is a good slogan, because reading people are thinking people. It may be that the answer to the book and the question, Why Johnny Can't Read is that Johnny's mama didn't bring him to the library for books when he was quite small, so Johnny just never developed the reading habit.

To talk about books for adults, we have three new novels which you might enjoy. One is by that versatile writer, Ludwig Lewisohn, and is called In a Summer Season. It relates the efforts of a successful businessman to solve his emotional problems and reduce the frustrations of his existence. The second novel is entitled The Carmelite, and is by Elgin Groseclose. It is the story of a Carmelite friar, Juan Thaddeus, who was sent by the Pope on a mission to the court of the Shah of Persia, Abbas the Great. This is a book written with beauty of expression and dignity. The third novel is by Ring Lardner, Jr. and is called The Ecstasy of Owen Muir. It is a story about orthodoxy, and the efforts of a young man to reconcile his religion and the realities of present-day America.

For the art lover, we have El Greco, by Antonina Vallentin. This is the first full-length biography of the painter, and is illustrated with over a hundred plates of his works.

Peter Churchill was one of Britain's most successful secret agents during the late war. His book, Duel of Wits, reads like fiction, but is sober truth.

It was during the turbulent twenties that the name of Elinor Glyn came to be known to the entire country. Originator of the "It" girl, Elinor Glyn was a beautiful woman with flaming hair and gentle manners, who succeeded in amassing a considerable fortune through her writings and related activities. This book was written by her grandson, Anthony Glyn.

Jake Ehrlich is a dramatic legend in San Francisco, a brilliant trial lawyer of whom they say, "If you're ever in trouble in Frisco, get Jake." John Noble has written a sparkling biography of Ehrlich which is entitled Never Plead Guilty.

A new book on golf is entitled The Golf Secret. The author, who's name is Henry Murray, has analysed the golf swing and through this analysis has helped many people to play a better game. It's a small book but a good one for you if you are a golfer.

One last mention is for Seven Men Among the Penguins by Mario Marret. The seven men were six Frenchmen and one Australian, who spent the winter of 1952 in the frozen regions of the South Pole, studying the Emporer Penguins. Arm chair travelers as well as naturalists should love this one.

We have more. A beautiful book on Spain, a technical one on stage lighting, a collection of 24 sermons entitled, The New Being, by Paul Tillich, and more . . . more . . . more.

The healing method of Christian Science will be the topic of a public lecture by Mrs. Mary C. Holloway of Shreveport, La., announced for Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock by The First Church of Christ Scientist of Carmel.

Everyone is invited and no tickets are neccessaary, members of the local group stated. Mrs. Holloway will speak in the church edifice at Sixth and Monte Verde Streets. Her subject will be, Christian Science, Man's Divine Destiny Revealed.

For some years a Christian Science practitioner, Mrs. Holloway is now a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship. Formerly she was active in community welfare and public relations work. She was trained at Ohio State University in campaign management, community organization, public budgeting, and financial administration, as well as the journalistic aspects of such work.

Belloc Sees Steinbeck Show

Just returned to his home at Richardson Bay from a trip to New York, Hilary Belloc visited Carmel last weekend and reported that while in New York he was "bootlegged" by John Steinbeck into a rehearsal of the latter's musical, Pipe Dream, based on his book Sweet Thursday.

Monterey's Cannery Row is the locale for the show and it centers around the now famous La Ida and its occupants. Helen Traubel has the lead as Dora Flood and is surrounded, according to Hilary's report, by a group of most beautiful girls. Doc, is a young man who bears little resemblance to the original character but does possess a fine voice which is the prime necessity for a leading role in a musical. Roger and Hammerstein are doing the music and lyrics and although the show is in its preliminary stages, it is being hailed as a "sure comer."

Hilary was much amused at Steinbeck's introducing him to members of the cast and production staff as "one of the original members of the gang at Doc's." Hilary was accompanied to Carmel by his wife. Hope, and they celebrated their twenty-third wedding anniversary on Sunday night by dining at Nepenthe.

John Toldi Born

When John Lawrence Toldi, who was born at the Peninsula Hospital on September 25, is a little older he will find that his father, Laszlo Toldi, has a fine tale to tell about how he escaped from Hungary to France in 1950 and the next year met his mother, a Californian who was traveling in France. Mrs. Toldi says, "Since then I have advocated travel." Mr. and Mrs. Toldi were married after Mr. Toldi arrived in Canada in 1951 and lived in Montreal, Canada, until their first child, Catherine, was about to be born, when they came to San Francisco so that she could grow up in a more clement climate than that of Eastern Canada. Catherine is now 20 months old. The Toldi family came to Carmel last November. Mr. Toldi, an engineer, is employed with the firm of Buckner, Holm and Waterman in Salinas. Grandparents of John Lawrence are Mr. and Mrs. Mario Bona of Burlingame and Mr. and Mrs. Istvan Toldi of Budapest, Hungary.

Jerome Chance Here Briefly

This weekend Dr. Jerome Chance of Sacramento paid his first visit to Carmel in ten years and remarked that "the town had not changed too much," although he could not find a store, now, that sold huarches (Mexican shoes). He and his mother lived in Carmel for some years prior to the war, occupying a house on Thirteenth Street when "Jerry" was active in local theatrical and music groups. He came to the Peninsula to take part in the local bridge tournament last weekend as he has become a bridge "whiz" since leaving Carmel.

It's too late now!

It's too late now for fire prevention. Rush the kids out of the house—a quick phone call to the fire department —lucky to be alive!

Face one fact squarely: fire is possible in your home now. Only constant vigilance will prevent it. Nine out of ten of all fires are directly traceable to human error or neglect. Fire prevention is more than a set of rules. Each person must become fire-aware so that he or she can anticipate what things may cause fire and avoid them.

Remember, to keep your home and job free from fire: Don't smoke in bed—Don't use flammable cleaning fluids—Be careful of oil stoves—Don't let children play with matches—Don't overload your wiring system—Don't let junk accumulate in attic and basement—Don't use ordinary extension cords on heaters and irons—Don't be careless with cigarettes. Be fire-aware. Don't give fire a place to start!

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

How spiritual understanding of divine law brings freedom from discord of every kind will be explained at Christian Science services Sunday.

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon "Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" is the Golden Text from Romans (8:2): "The law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death."

The importance of coping with sin is emphasized in selections to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, including the following (315:16): "The likeness of God we lose sight of through sin, which beclouds the spiritual sense of Truth; and we realize this likeness only when we subdue sin and prove man's heritage, the liberty of the sons of God."

Readings from the Old and New Testaments of the Bible will include Christ Jesus' parable of the prodigal son (Luke 15).

Millard Speaks Of Community Chest Work With Youth

Malcolm Millard, campaign chairman for the community chest drive, stressed work done with youth, such as the Carmel Youth Center, when he spoke at the drive opening gathering Monday evening at the Monterey USO. "Work with youth today builds happy and mature adults tomorrow," was his statement.

A telegram from Captain Archer M. R. Allen, USN (Ret.) was read to the various peninsula drive chairmen present, regretting his absence due to hospitalization as the result of an automobile accident.

Goal of the drive is $101,034. All persons are asked to give 20 per cent more than they did last year and have their names placed on the honor roll. Local chairmen present were Jack Miller, Mrs. Will Shaw, William Gahagan and William Noelle.

added expense for the owners.

Mrs. Mary Goold protested any closing of Ocean Avenue for the proposed Art Festival but Mawdsley remarked that, as yet, no request for this action has come up for consideration by the Council. Mrs. Maude Stewart's protest about a guy wire on the sidewalk opposite her property on San Carlos Street, between Ocean and Seventh, had already been attended to by the city clerk who pointed out governing restrictions to the P.G. and E. in this respect and the offending wire was removed.

Commercial sign applications granted: Lina Cornwall's for Juney Lee Dress Shop, east side of Dolores between Ocean and Seventh; Chester Lewis', change of location to Patterson Building; Carolyn Elstob's for Best From Britain, south side of Sixth between Lincoln and Dolores; Margaret C. Brewington's for Ave Maria Book Shop, north side of Sixth between Lincoln and Dolores; Sybil Faul's for Sybil's Bib n' Tucker to north side of Ocean between San Carlos and Dolores; also approved, rewording of existing sign, Dina Marine from Paris, south side of Ocean near Monte Verde.

Business licence changes approved: Transfer of Hillyer's Restaurant from Mrs. D. Blanche Hillyer to Manuel Pereiro; Dr. E. V. Sahlsten to James E. Gilman on Seventh between Dolores and San Carlos.

tell us a thing. That sort of history is a dumb brute so far as I am concerned. The facts can be ascertained. Their significance is doubtful. Actually every generation makes its own history. This is no new story but there is a fine theory that one can partly understand the ideas of a given century by studying what that century made of the decline and fall of the Roman Empire. In the 18th century Gibbon thought the Christian church had something to do with the decline of the structure. The 19th century thought it might be malaria. The mid-nineteenth century inclined to a belief the Roman Empire fell because the Romans never developed a representative form of government, and the twentieth century blames it on mismanagement of public finance. Something is always happening. Events are precipitated according to definite laws and patterns, but you can't know all the factors involved unless you've had previous experience and history doesn't repeat."

It isn't necessary for Dr. Herrick to say he finds the study of history fascinating. It led him from Ohio to Balliol College of Oxford, chosen as a Rhodes scholar from among the outstanding students of his generation. It brought him his bachelor of arts degree from Western Reserve University, his master of arts degree from the University of Wisconsin, another bachelor's degree from Oxford and a Ph. D from Yale. In addition to his teaching at Mills College he has served as head of the department of history for several years. For ten years he has been in charge of the bibliographical section of the American Historical Review. For five years he has served as secretary of the Pacific coast branch of the American Historical Association and as a member of the executive committee of the Western College Association, the accrediting body for universities and colleges on the west coast. There have been articles too, in the Journal of Modern History, the Pacific Historical Review and other journals.

His laurels do but frame his other prizes: his wife Miriam, his elder daughter Mipsy, now married and living in Alaska, his son Charles, just recently off to Dartmouth, and his youngest daughter Meg.

Three Injured In Traffic Accidents

Three persons were injured in traffic accidents and hospitalized this week. Peter Allen Jenkins of Upper Walden Road, Carmel Highlands, is still unconscious and in a critical condition at the Peninsula Community Hospital due to a broadside collision on Monday afternoon between the motorcycle he was driving East on Ocean Avenue and a car entering Ocean from Junipero Street, driven by Jean Francis Peck of Carmel.

Also a patient in the Peninsula Hospital is Beecher McConnell, 8, son of Mrs. Roberta McConnell of Monte Verde and Twelfth Streets. Beecher was riding his bicycle when he skidded on gravel at the corner of Carmelo and Sixteenth Streets and collided with a car driven by Nellie McFadon of Rio Road and Sixteenth Street. "The big green car just kept coming, it didn't stop," was his explanation of the accident. He is hospitalized with a compound fracture of the left leg, both above and below the knee.

A car driven by Nancie Nielsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nielsen, and a car driven by William F. Hall collided as Nancie made a left turn to enter Hatton Road off Ocean at 7:50 o'clock yesterday morning. The Hall car was coming down Ocean. Mrs. Ruth Hall of Carmel Valley a passenger in the car, was taken to the Peninsula Hospital and is now reported in good condition.

NO BREAKFAST

The Fire Department answered a call to the house occupied by L. H. Duncan on Santa Fe between Third and Fourth Streets at 10:00 o'clock this morning. Smoke was pouring from the kitchen when they arrived but the fire was already extinguished. It was caused by rolls being placed in the oven to heat, still in the wrapper in which they were purchased. The paper ignited, the rolls burned, lots of smoke . . . no breakfast.
